11 Learning Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, qualities, skills and other attributes in the following areas. The programme outcomes have references to the benchmark statements for Linguistics and for English.

Knowledge and Understanding

On completing the programme students should have knowledge and understanding of:

A1. The nature of human language A2. Essential linguistic terminology and methodology A3. The structure of English, its history and relation to other languages A4. Varieties of English, and the geographical, social and contextual factors which produce them A5. Computational models of language A6. The acquisition of language A7. The intellectual context in which the English language is studied
Teaching and Learning Methods At Stage 1 knowledge and understanding is acquired via lectures and seminars. At Stages 2 and 3 they are acquired via lectures and seminars and independent study, especially the Extended Study. More advanced knowledge and understanding is developed with the optional Dissertation at Stage 3. Students are encouraged to supplement taught material through independent reading. Guidance on further reading is provided by each module director.
Assessment Strategy Where there is a single assessment of knowledge and understanding in a module, it will normally be via unseen examination of 3 hours or submitted work of 4000, 5000 or 10,000 words in length. Many modules have multiple ‘mixed’ assessments, in which case the lengths above are used on a pro rata basis. Some modules also assess knowledge and understanding in part by oral presentations. Examinations provide students with the opportunity to demonstrate their ability to structure a clear, concise and well reasoned argument, to address linguistic problems and engage in practical analysis in an unseen context. Submitted work enables students to expand on and test these skills; it also enables them to demonstrate their knowledge of the scholarly protocols of the discipline.
Intellectual Skills On completing the programme students should be able to: B1. collect, analyse and evaluate data; B2. analyse and critically evaluate argumentation; B3. compare and evaluate differing intellectual frameworks and theories; B4. apply a developed appreciation of the role of language in our daily lives - and of the English as a global language.
Teaching and Learning Methods At Stage 1 intellectual skills are acquired via lectures and seminars. Seminars give students the opportunity to discuss ideas and critical practices raised in lectures and to practice problem-solving. In the Language seminars, emphasis is placed on the practical acquisition of intellectual skills for language and linguistic analysis. At Stages 2 and 3 intellectual skills are acquired via lectures and independent study, especially the Extended Study. More advanced cognitive skills are developed with the optional Dissertation.

Examination provide students with the opportunity to demonstrate their ability to structure a clear, concise and well reasoned argument in a limited time period, to address linguistic problems and engage in practical analysis in an unseen context. . Submitted work enables students to expand on and test these skills; it also enables them to demonstrate their employment of appropriate research techniques.

Practical Skills

On completing the programme students should be able to:

- C1. practise critical argumentation in language study;
- C2. gather, analyse and evaluate linguistic data;
- C3. compare different linguistic frameworks and their motivation;
- C4. understand the relation between data and theory in English Language study
- C5. address specific analytical, psychological and cultural issues posed by language and English in particular.

Teaching and Learning Methods

At Stage 1 practical skills are acquired via lectures and seminars. Seminars give students the opportunity to discuss ideas and critical practices raised in lectures and to practice problem-solving. In the Language seminars, emphasis is placed on the acquisition of practical skills for language and linguistic analysis. At Stages 2 and 3 practical skills are acquired via lectures and independent study, especially the Extended Study. More advanced practical skills are developed with the optional Dissertation.

Transferable/Key Skills

On completing the programme students should be able to:

- D1. plan and complete essays and project-work
- D2. write and speak to different audiences
- D3. co-ordinate multiple projects
- D4. use information technology (word processing; the internet)
- D5. gather, evaluate and organise material
- D6. summarise and assimilate information
- D7. communicate and debate effectively
- D8. work to deadlines or within specified time-limits
- D9. work and negotiate with others
- D10. work effectively both in a team and independently
- D11. present information to a group in a structured and coherent way

Teaching and Learning Methods
Transferable/Key skills are promoted through seminars and tutorials. At Stage 1 students are given guidance to ensure that they can debate effectively, negotiate with others and present information to a group. Skills D1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 in particular are introduced and practised on SEL1009: Academic Research and/or practised in the weekly tutorials. These skills are promoted at Stages 2 and 3 with continued emphasis on small group work, and with increased opportunity for guided independent study. Students are also given experience of small groups (tutorials and seminars) of different sizes: from groups of 7 or 8 at Stage 1 to groups of 15 at Stage 2 and 3.
Assessment Strategy
Assessment of key skills is implicit in course work at all levels, although Academic Research focuses on these particularly. Presentation skills are formally assessed (by tutor and peers) in those modules which have an oral presentation as part of the summative assessment.

12 Programme Curriculum, Structure and Features
Basic structure of the programme
The programme is studied over three years full-time; it is divided into study units or modules, which have a value of either 10 or 20 credits, or, in the case of the Dissertation only, 40 credits. Each 10 credit module represents 100 hours of student learning, and each 20 credit module, 200 hours. At each Stage the student is required to take and be assessed in modules to the value of 120 credits. At Stage 1 students are given a thorough grounding in the basic knowledge and skills of the three areas of language and linguistic study: syntax, phonology and socio-/historical linguistics. Stage 1 modules introduce students to the practical skills of linguistic analysis which they will need at Stages 2 and 3. The module Academic Research introduces students to academic skills: written English, preparing an essay and a presentation. An emphasis is placed at Stage 1 on small group teaching to enable the acquisition of academic, practical and key skills. Stage 1 language students must also take a further 40 credits outside their subject. At Stages 2 and 3 there is a wide choice of modules. This gives students the scope to design their degree programme and to exercise choice. It also gives them the opportunity to develop particular interests and, by Stage 3, an area of expertise. Band restrictions, however, ensure coverage of the different language areas. Students are required to take modules to the value of 40 credits from the language and linguistics bands 1-2, and a further 100 credits from bands 1-3. Language students may also take Literature and Extended Study modules. They must take further modules of up to 60 credits from Bands 1-9. This can include a Dissertation (40 credits), Extended Study (20 credits) or a File of Original Literary Work (20), as well as further literature or language modules. The Extended Study and Dissertation also introduce students applying for postgraduate degrees to advanced research skills. Key skills D1-11 are practised across Stages 2 and 3.
Key features of the programme (including what makes the programme distinctive)
All undergraduates in the School of English Literature, Language and Linguistics can elect to study abroad for one semester, typically the second semester of year two or the first semester of year three. Currently SELLL has links with institutions in Europe and with universities in North America. SELLL students can also take advantage of University and Faculty-led programmes (including exchanges with universities in Canada and Australia).

See <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/undergraduate/support/facilities/langcen.phtml>

15 Methods for evaluating and improving the quality and standards of teaching and learning

Module reviews

All modules are subject to review by questionnaires which are considered by the Board of Studies. Changes to, or the introduction of new, modules are considered at the School Teaching and Learning Committee and at the Board of Studies. Student opinion is sought at the Staff-Student Committee and the Board of Studies. New modules and major changes to existing modules are subject to approval by the Faculty Teaching and Learning Committee.
