10 Programme Aims

The broad educational aims of the programme are:

- to develop and widen students' knowledge and understanding of translating and/or interpreting both as a profession and an academic discipline;
- to provide students with knowledge of what it means to be a translating/ interpreting professional in terms not only of practical techniques, but also of attitudes and ethics;
- to provide students with substantial translating and interpreting experience to reach starter – professional level standard;
- to provide students with advanced language training in both A and B languages<sup>1</sup>;
- to address national and international needs for cross- cultural communication;

The programme aims to produce graduates with the following qualities:

- competence in the skills of translating and interpreting which they will be able to consolidate and develop further in their professional fields as translators and /or interpreters;
- the ability to exploit available resources such as internet information, library books, and informants to solve problems specific to both language and subject areas;
- proficiency in both source and target languages;
- competence in critical analysis and translating and/or interpreting work, and the application of theory into practice;
- the ability to develop an interest in translating or interpreting as a topic of academic study and research;

<sup>1</sup> The B-language is a translator's "second" language. The A-language is his/her language of best command (usually the mother tongue).

11 Learning Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, qualities, skills and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

On completing the programme students should have gained a knowledge of:

- A1 the generic skills appropriate to advanced study in arts and humanities, both theoretical and practical, at Masters level;
- A2 the demands of a wide range of translating or interpreting situations and the various strategies and approaches that can be taken to meet these demands;
- A3 the key concepts in translating and/or interpreting theory, criticism, processes and professional practice;
- A4 the aspects of an independent and self-chosen study.

Teaching and Learning Methods

The primary means of imparting knowledge and understanding is a combination of lectures, seminars and tutorials. Lectures will provide students with basic background knowledge, which will be explored further in seminars, and will direct them toward further reading and study material which they will use to consolidate and develop their knowledge and understanding. Seminars follow up the lectures and focus on specific topics to provide opportunities for further discussion and exchange of ideas. Tutorials provide students with opportunities for in-depth guidance on self study.

Assessment Strategy

A1 skills are assessed by means of continuous assessment in the form of seminar presentations, submitted written translation with commentary and interpreting tasks (formative), and by means of written translation examinations and live panel interpreting examinations, and a final translating or interpreting project carried out independently, under the supervision of specialist staff members. .

Intellectual Skills

On completing the programme, students should have the following subject-specific/ professional skills :

- B1 sufficient language proficiency to undertake translation and interpreting tasks to starter-professional standard (Language B to Language A), and to a good non-native professional standard (Language A to Language B);
- B2 skills to complete and analyse translation tasks in a wide range of text types to starter-professional standard, and to a good non-native professional standard ( Language A to Language B);
- B3 starter- professional skills in consecutive and/or simultaneous interpreting in a wide range of text types;
- B4 the ability to choose from and use a wide range of strategies and approaches to tackle different translation and interpreting tasks;
- B5 the ability to use informants to improve translation/interpreting output.
- B6 familiarity with and ability to use state of the art translation and interpreting technology;

B7 knowledge of the key aspects of career management in translating and/or interpreting.
Teaching and Learning Methods
These skills will be developed through translating/interpreting, language, and information technology classes. Students will be enabled to develop their translation and interpreting skills through private study, tandem learning, the use of Open Access Centre self-study facilities , and the use of informants in both language and subject areas.
Assessment Strategy
B1 is assessed by formative written assessment and oral presentations. B2-7 are assessed by formative and summative assessment.
Practical Skills
On completing the programme students should be able to:
C1 gather data, synthesise and evaluate complex information;
C2 undertake independent, critical analysis, and make optimal decisions;
C3 identify the key issues, organise and present ideas convincingly, and draw well-reasoned conclusions;
C4 apply appropriate methodologies to specific areas of study;
Teaching and Learning Methods
These skills will be developed through seminars with associated reading. The assessed pieces of work combining practical translating/interpreting tasks and essays also provide a significant further opportunity to develop cognitive skills. The dissertation or translating/interpreting projects consolidate and reinforce students' cognitive skills through undertaking independent and in-depth research in a specific area.
Assessment Strategy
C1-4 are assessed formatively by continuous assessment and summatively by submitted written work, examination and the final translating/interpreting project or dissertation.
Transferable/Key Skills
On completing the programme students should be able to:
D1 independently manage their time, make plans, and set priorities to achieve a complex objective;
D2 exploit library and bibliographic research resources;
D3 use email, databases, and information-technology as research and professional tools;
D4 identify and solve problems;
D5 communicate;
D6 work with others as part of a team to achieve an objective.

Teaching and Learning Methods
Lectures, seminars, tutorials, with the associated reading and study encourage the acquisition of key skills. Practical translating/interpreting tasks, classroom presentations, assessed work, and finally the project/dissertation, will further develop the students' key skills.
Assessment Strategy
D1-4 is assessed through submitted written assignments and the translating/interpreting projects or dissertation. D5-6 are not specifically assessed, but their development contributes towards obtaining higher-level results in all types of assessment.

14 Support for Student Learning

The Student Services portal provides links to key services and other information and is available at: <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/students/>

Induction

During the first week of the first semester students attend an induction programme. New students will be given a general introduction to University life and the University's principle support services and general information about the School and the programme, as described in the Degree Programme Handbook. New and continuing students will be given detailed programme information and the timetable of lectures/practicals/labs/tutorials/etc. The International Office offers an additional induction programme for overseas students.

Study skills support

Students will learn a range of Personal Transferable Skills, including Study Skills, as outlined in the Programme Specification. Some of this material, e.g. time management, is covered in the appropriate Induction Programme. Students are explicitly tutored on their approach to both group and individual projects.

Numeracy support is available through Maths Aid and help with academic writing is available from the Writing Centre (further information is available from the Robinson Library).

Academic support

The initial point of contact for a student is with a lecturer or module leader, or their tutor (see below) for more generic issues. Thereafter the Degree Programme Director or Head of School may be consulted. Issues relating to the programme may be raised at the Staff-Student Committee, and/or at the Board of Studies.

Pastoral support

All students are assigned a personal tutor whose responsibility is to monitor the academic performance and overall well-being of their tutees. In addition the University offers a range of support services, including one-to-one counselling and guidance or group sessions / workshops on a range of topics, such as emotional issues e.g. Stress and anxiety, student finance and budgeting, disability matters etc. There is specialist support available for students with dyslexia and mental health issues. The Union Society operates a Student Advice Centre, which can provide advocacy and support to students on a range of topics including housing, debt, legal issues etc.

Support for students with disabilities

The University's Disability Support Service provides help and advice for disabled students at the University and those thinking of coming to Newcastle. It provides individuals with: advice about the University's facilities, services and the accessibility of campus; details about the technical support available; guidance in study skills and advice on financial support arrangements; a resources room with equipment and software to assist students in their studies.

Learning resources

The University's main learning resources are provided by the Robinson and Walton Libraries (for books, journals, online resources), and Information Systems and Services, which supports campus-wide computing facilities. Within the School of Modern Languages, students also have access to online learning resources for translating and interpreting practices as well as language study materials.

The FTLC takes an overview of all programmes within the Faculty and reports any Faculty or institutional issues to the University Teaching and Learning Committee.

External Examiner reports

External Examiner reports are considered by the Board of Studies. The Board responds to these reports through Faculty Teaching and Learning Committee. External Examiner reports are shared with institutional student representatives, through the Staff-Student Committee.

Student evaluations

All modules, and the degree programme, are subject to review by student questionnaires. Informal student evaluation is also obtained at the Staff-Student Committee, and the Board of Studies. The results from student surveys are considered as part of the Annual Monitoring and Review of the programme and any arising actions are captured at programme and School / institutional level and reported to the appropriate body.

Mechanisms for gaining student feedback

Feedback is channelled via the Staff-Student Committee and the Board of Studies.

Faculty and University Review Mechanisms

The programme is subject to the University's Internal Subject Review process. Every five years degree programmes in each subject area are subject to periodic review. This involves both the detailed consideration of a range of documentation, and a two-day review visit by a review team which includes an external subject specialist in addition to University and Faculty representatives. Following the review a report is produced, which forms the basis for a decision by University Teaching and Learning Committee on whether the programmes reviewed should be re-approved for a further five year period.
