1. SENIOR STATUTORY BODIES

The University of Newcastle upon Tyne came into separate existence on 1 August 1963, as a result of the passing of the Universities of Durham and Newcastle upon Tyne Act. The constitutional framework within which the University operates is based upon its Statutes (available at <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/regulations/docs/statutes.pdf>).

The statutory bodies are the Council, the Senate, the Court, the Academic Board, the Faculties and Convocation. The structure of governance of the University follows the usual pattern for English universities established before 1992, although there are one or two noteworthy features. The Council has no representative members, and the Senate, a small body by national comparisons, has a majority of elected members and does not consist of all the senior members of the academic staff.

COUNCIL

Responsibilities of Council

Council is the supreme governing body of the University. It is specifically charged with the management and control of the University's finances and property and with reviewing the work of the University. The Statutes state that Council shall have the custody, control and disposition of all the property and finance of the University and that, subject to the powers of Senate, Council has overall responsibility for advancing the University's interests, maintaining its efficiency, encouraging teaching, learning and research and providing facilities for the recreation and well-being of students.

The Council is responsible for ensuring that the University complies with the terms and conditions of funding for higher education institutions with which the Office for Students (OfS) makes financial allocations to the University. The terms and conditions in effect require the Council to ensure prudent and proper financial and general management of the University.

Legislation requires all members to declare their personal interests if they are associated, for example, with private sector companies involved in the development of University projects. This Register of Interests is updated annually and may be consulted by arrangement with the Governance Office in the University Executive Office.

In accordance with the Higher Education Code of Governance, published by the Committee of University Chairs in 2014 and revised in 2018, the University has adopted a Statement of Primary Responsibilities on the role of Council. This is attached as Appendix I. The University complies with the Code.

Membership

Council is a small body with no 'representative' category of membership. It is chaired by a lay person, ie someone who is not a member of the salaried staff or a student of the University. There are up to 25 members – 11-16 lay members (including the Honorary Treasurer), 2 students and 7 University staff.

The Chair and lay members of Council, who by statute form the majority of the membership, have a vital part to play in the governance of the University and bring a knowledge and experience of particular value, given the nature of the environment in which universities now work. They have always figured prominently in the University's affairs as members of Council itself, as chairs or members of senior University committees (including Finance Committee and Audit, Risk and Assurance Committee) and as advisers to the administration and academic schools in a variety of ways.

Operation

Council generally meets six times per year and most meetings include the consideration of a major strategic item. Council reports to Senate on any items with academic implications and to the OfS on such matters as the Financial Forecasts and the Financial Statements.

The minutes of Council meetings are published on the University's website or are available in hard copy on request from the Governance Office of the University Executive Office.

SENATE

Senate is, by statute, the supreme governing body of the University in all academic matters. It normally meets six times per year. Subject to the powers reserved to Court and Council, it is responsible for taking such measures and acting in such a manner as is best calculated to promote the interests of the University as a place of education, learning and research. Its detailed responsibilities include the regulation and control of teaching; the encouragement of research; and academic staff training. Senate has delegated many of its responsibilities in curricular and teaching matters to the University Education Committee. (Appendix II sets out the formal powers and responsibilities of Senate.)

The membership of Senate, which at 36 is small by national standards, is largely elected and comprises: 11 ex officio members (including three students), 20 members elected from the University overall, one lay member of Council, one other elected student and up to three co-opted members.

Senate reports to Council on the academic implications of, for example, financial, staff, student or property issues.

COURT

Court normally meets twice a year. Court provides a channel of communication between the University and the community in Newcastle, the North East of England, and beyond, informing different constituencies of the work of the University, and the University of the needs of these constituencies which are relevant to its activities. Its statutory role is to advise upon and further the work of the University. Its responsibilities include the discussion of any matters relevant to the interests and well-being of the University, the approval of changes to the statutes for submission to the Privy Council, making regulations for the custody and use of the common seal of the University and the appointment of half of the lay membership of Council's Nominations Committee.

Court receives reports from the Vice-Chancellor and generally receives at each meeting a presentation on an aspect of the University's core business which provides a useful forum for discussion. Court may make recommendations to Senate and Council on any matters affecting the University or direct its concerns on issues to national organisations, the government etc.

The maximum membership of Court is 61 and comprises 13 principal officers of the University, 7 members of University staff, 1 student member and between 30 and 40 lay co-opted members.

ACADEMIC BOARD

The membership of Academic Board includes all staff on Grade E and above. The Board is a non-executive body and it may discuss and declare opinions on any matters affecting the University and enter into communication with Senate and Council on such matters. Members are given the opportunity to raise any question with the Vice-Chancellor who chairs the meetings of Academic Board, which are held normally once per year.

CONVOCATION

Convocation is a statutory body consisting of the Vice-Chancellor, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor, the Pro-Vice-Chancellors, all alumni of the University and all its predecessor organisations, and five elected academic staff. The Chair, and Deputy Chair if there is one, are elected from among the members but must not be members of the salaried staff of the University.

Convocation is responsible for appointing the Chancellor on the nomination of Court and Senate sitting in joint session and is involved in the approval of proposed changes to the statutes. It may also discuss, and if it thinks fit, make representations on any matter whatsoever relating to the University.

An annual meeting of Convocation is held at which the Vice-Chancellor makes a report on University affairs and members are given the opportunity to raise matters of concern. Details of meetings and other information are available on the University's website at: <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/executive/governance/convocation.htm>

2. COMMITTEE STRUCTURE

The statutory bodies may establish committees as they think fit and these committees may be revised or dissolved in response to changing needs. The University's committee structure contributes to meeting institutional aims by providing the means for consultation and comment in all aspects of University business. Council and Senate, have, in accordance with this principle, delegated major responsibilities to committees, subject to reporting arrangements as appropriate. There are three types of University committees: formal bodies and their sub-committees reporting directly to Council and/or Senate; special interest groups, which might have a short-term existence and do not have delegated powers; ad hoc boards and committees appointed for specific purposes, for example professorial appointment boards. Whilst each committee or body has a specific remit, there is generally wider consultation to ensure an integrated and comprehensive decision-making process. This is particularly true in relation to major policy matters, for example the formulation of the University's vision and strategy, which involves an iterative process of discussions at all levels.

Executive Board comprises the senior management team of the University. Executive Board is a joint committee of Senate and Council. It has central oversight of the day-to-day business of the University. It meets every week.

Executive Board's remit is to exercise an integrated overview of the University's policies and resources through the implementation of the strategic plan and enabling strategies, ensure a prompt and strongly co-ordinated approach to the evaluation of academic and business opportunities, and appraise and prioritise proposals for major new initiatives. It makes recommendations to Council and Senate on the University's strategy. It monitors the University's key performance indicators and financial performance against its strategic objectives. It has ownership of and management responsibility for key risks. With regard to budgetary responsibility, it reviews the use of resources and financial performance of all budgetary units, approves the annual financial allocations to all units, recommends the framework, timetable and format for the annual planning and budgetary exercise to Senate and Council and reviews the mechanisms for the internal allocation of resources for report to Council.

3. ACADEMIC STRUCTURES

The primary aim of the restructuring review of 2001-02 was to simplify and strengthen the operational arrangements of the University.

FACULTIES

Faculties are defined as a group of schools, institutes and centres in which teaching and research are conducted in a number of subjects and in which degrees and other qualifications may be conferred. There are three Faculties, each led by a Pro-Vice-Chancellor, as follows:

- Humanities and Social Sciences (<http://www.ncl.ac.uk/hss>)
- Medical Sciences (<http://www.ncl.ac.uk/medicallsciences/>)
- Science, Agriculture and Engineering (<http://www.ncl.ac.uk/sage>)

Each Faculty was given the opportunity to develop governance structures appropriate to its particular needs and situation. Each one has its own Executive Board. In addition, there are committees responsible for teaching and learning, research and the graduate schools. There is also provision for a general meeting of all academic staff in a faculty.

ACADEMIC UNITS: SCHOOLS, INSTITUTES AND CENTRES

The academic school or institute is the basic unit for teaching, research and resource management, embodying a coherent area of academic activity. The head of school/institute is the budget holder and is expected to ensure the quality of teaching and research in the school and the efficient use of resources. The flexibility of structures such as institutes, centres and multi-disciplinary research groups ensure that subject boundaries do not inhibit research collaboration. Headships of academic schools are normally made for a period of five years and may be renewed. For a list of all academic units see:

<http://www.ncl.ac.uk/executive/assets/documents/UniversityStructures.pdf>

4. ACADEMIC AND ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT STRUCTURES

The academic and administrative support services are under the overall management of a unitary Registrar.

Each Faculty has an overarching director of operations who leads the faculty support team. The director of operations is assisted by dedicated management accounting, human resources and contract support functions, together with administrative support for the graduate schools. All members have a clear area of expertise and combine a University monitoring/regulating role with a faculty role which demands a strong attachment to the Faculty and a thorough knowledge and appreciation of its activities and objectives.

FINANCIAL PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT

At the highest level Executive Board is responsible for the annual allocation of resources to all faculties and non-faculty services.

Faculties

Faculties have formal financial accountability and management structures. The Pro-Vice-Chancellor for the Faculty, advised by the other members of the relevant faculty body, is annually accountable to Executive Board for the distribution of the Faculty's allocation to its budget centres. In turn, heads of school/institutes are accountable to the Pro-Vice-Chancellor for the use of the funds allocated to them. Faculty allocation mechanisms vary in detail although all allocate a faculty top-slice which may be used, for example, to meet certain fixed costs or used as a strategic fund. Faculty support teams monitor their Faculty allocations to compare them against Faculty and school plans and for financial viability.

Academic and Administrative Support Services

The academic and administrative support services have a devolved budget, which provides for all staff and non-pay expenditure.

5. STUDENT PARTICIPATION

The University has a long tradition of formal and informal participation by students in many aspects of the government of the University. Council and Senate both have student membership and there are student members on many other central University committees. Each school has a staff/student committee established to take proper account of the views of students in relation to all matters affecting their interests including the organisation and effectiveness of teaching and proposals to introduce or modify degree programmes. There is also student representation on all boards of studies.

6. THE STUDENTS' UNION

The University provides an annual subvention to the Students' Union. All students are eligible to become members. The University determines the annual subvention after discussion with Students' Union officers and may decide to earmark a certain proportion for specific items.

The financial operation of the Students' Union, the administration of the building and the day-to-day running of all activities and facilities are the responsibility of the Students' Union itself. The Students' Union helps to administer and finance a wide range of student societies including the Athletic Union which promotes sport in the University and is an integral part of the organisation.

7. PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

The principal officers assist with the governance of the University. The Visitor to the University is the Queen. The remaining principal officers, listed below, comprise both members of the University staff and non-University officers appointed by the University's statutory bodies. Photographs and further information concerning these officers are available at <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/executive/governance/officers.htm>

THE CHANCELLOR

The Chancellor is the head of the University and is appointed by Convocation on the nomination of Court and Senate sitting in joint session. By tradition, the Chancellor takes no actual part in the daily affairs of the University, though he may be consulted and offer advice on certain important matters. The Chancellor presides at all meetings of Court when present and confers degrees at certain degree Congregations.

THE CHAIR OF COUNCIL

The Chair of Council holds the honorary title of Pro-Chancellor by virtue of holding that office. The Chair of Council is concerned both formally and informally with all the major financial and strategic decisions of the University and works closely with the Vice-Chancellor and other senior officers on broad issues of policy and development. The Chair has delegated authority to take decisions on behalf of Council which are then reported formally to Council. The Chair is ex officio a member of Finance Committee.

THE VICE-CHAIR(S) OF COUNCIL

The Vice-Chair(s) of Council acts for the Chair in his/her absence.

THE HONORARY TREASURER

The Honorary Treasurer is ex officio a member of Council and Chair of the Finance Committee. The Honorary Treasurer's prime function is to ensure that the University pursues a prudent financial policy and to report as necessary to Council. The Honorary Treasurer may ask the Vice-Chancellor and the Executive Director of Finance for any necessary information just as they feel free to consult and seek advice from the Honorary Treasurer on particular questions.

THE VICE-CHANCELLOR

The Vice-Chancellor is the chief academic and executive officer of the University with responsibility under the statutes for maintaining and promoting the efficiency and good order of the University. He/she is ex officio Chair of Senate and many other major committees and has delegated authority to take decisions on behalf of Senate which are then reported formally to Senate. The Vice-Chancellor works closely with the Chair and lay members of Council. The Vice-Chancellor is regarded from within the University and in external relations as the de facto head of the institution. The planning and resource allocation mechanisms, with the Vice-Chancellor as Chair of Executive Board, emphasise this position still further.

DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR

The Vice-Chancellor is assisted by a Deputy Vice-Chancellor who, in the absence of the Vice-Chancellor, performs the duties of that office. The Deputy Vice-Chancellor is an academic member of staff who is usually appointed for a period of three years and may be re-appointed. He/she is responsible for, amongst other things, the University's internationalisation and engagement activities.

PRO-VICE-CHANCELLORS

The Vice-Chancellor is assisted by three Pro-Vice-Chancellors. Currently these are:

- Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education)
- Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Engagement and Internationalisation)
- Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Research Strategy and Resources)

They are academic staff and as chairs of a number of the University's major committees play a leading role, which is essentially full-time, in many important aspects of the University's business such as academic policy and planning, research, teaching and quality matters, international relations and regional development. They are normally appointed for a period of three years and may be re-appointed.

In addition, each Faculty has a Pro-Vice-Chancellor who acts as the executive head of their particular Faculty. They are appointed, normally for a period of three years although reappointment is possible, by Council after consultation with Senate, following consideration of a report from the Committee. Pro-Vice-Chancellors are charged with ensuring the efficient conduct of their Faculty's affairs.

THE REGISTRAR

The Registrar is a unitary post with explicit responsibility, to Council through the Vice-Chancellor, for co-ordinating all elements of the University's professional support services. He is secretary to Court, Council and Senate, and his staff service many other Senate and Council committees and the main faculty committees. The Director of Estates is responsible to Council through the Registrar for the management of the estate.

THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF FINANCE

The Executive Director of Finance is responsible to Council through the Vice-Chancellor for co-ordinating the University's financial services.

THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF HUMAN RESOURCES

The Executive Director of Human Resources is responsible to Council through the Vice-Chancellor for overseeing the University's Human Resources arrangements.

THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF CORPORATE AFFAIRS

The Executive Director of Corporate Affairs is responsible for overseeing the University's public profile, including its web presence, internal and external communications, corporate events and the executive functions.

Council: Statement of Primary Responsibilities

The Council is the supreme governing body of the University, subject to the provisions of the University's Statutes. The primary responsibilities of the Council are as follows.

1. To approve the mission and strategic vision of the institution, long-term academic and business plans and key performance indicators, and to ensure that these meet the interests of stakeholders.
2. To ensure that processes are in place to monitor and evaluate the performance and effectiveness of the institution against the plans and approved key performance indicators, which should be – where possible and appropriate – benchmarked against other comparable institutions.
3. To delegate authority to the head of the institution, as chief executive, for the academic, corporate, financial, estate and human resource management of the institution. And to establish and keep under regular review the policies, procedures and limits within such management functions as shall be undertaken by and under the authority of the head of the institution.
4. To ensure the establishment and monitoring of systems of control and accountability, including financial and operational controls and risk assessment, and procedures for handling internal grievances and for managing conflicts of interest.
5. To establish processes to monitor and evaluate the performance and effectiveness of the governing body itself.
6. To conduct its business in accordance with best practice in HE corporate governance and with the principles of public life drawn up by the Committee on Standards in Public Life.
7. To safeguard the good name and values of the institution.
8. To appoint the head of the institution as chief executive, and to put in place suitable arrangements for monitoring his/her performance.
9. To appoint a Secretary to the governing body and to ensure that, if the person appointed has managerial responsibilities in the institution, there is an appropriate separation in the lines of accountability.
10. To be the employing authority for all staff in the institution and to be responsible for establishing a human resources strategy.
11. To be the principal financial and business authority of the institution, to ensure that proper books of account are kept, to approve the annual budget and financial statements, and to have overall responsibility for the institution's assets, property and estate.
12. To be the institution's legal authority and, as such, to ensure that systems are in place for meeting all the institution's legal obligations, including those arising from contracts and other legal commitments made in the institution's name.

13. To receive assurance that adequate provision has been made for the general welfare of students.
14. To act as trustee for any property, legacy, endowment, bequest or gift in support of the work and welfare of the institution.
15. To ensure that the institution's constitution is followed at all times and that appropriate advice is available to enable this to happen.

Approved by Council, 18.7.2005, Minute 88. Amended by Council Minute 10, 18.10.2010. Amended by Council Minute 11, 19.10.2015 following the adoption of a revised Statement of Responsibilities as published by the Committee of University Chairs, in the Higher Education Code of Governance, published December 2014 and revised June 2018.

APPENDIX II

(Extract from the University Statutes)

Powers of the Senate

27. The senate shall be the supreme governing body of the University in all academic matters and shall, subject to the powers reserved to the court and the council by these statutes, take such measures and act in such manner as shall appear to it best calculated to promote the interests of the University as a place of education, learning and research.

28. The powers of the senate shall include the following:

- (1) to regulate and control, in accordance with procedures approved by it, all teaching, courses of study and examinations within the University, and the conditions qualifying for admission to the various titles, degrees and other distinctions offered by the University;
- (2) to act jointly with the council to nominate the vice-chancellor for appointment by the council in accordance with the provisions of statute 8;
- (3) to be consulted by and make representations to the council on the framework of duties and conditions of employment of all members of the academic staff;
- (4) to make recommendations to the council concerning all University academic fees;
- (5) to regulate the matter of student discipline;
- (6) to make representations and recommendations to the council on any matter of interest to the University;
- (7) to discuss and declare an opinion on any academic matter;
- (8) except as otherwise provided, to appoint representatives of the University on other bodies;
- (9) to exercise such powers as are or may be conferred upon it elsewhere in these statutes;
- (10) to define the membership of the academic board and each board of faculty.
