

This PhD investigates parental perceptions of their child's weight status and parental reports of their child's Health-Related Quality of Life. It is linked to a study I have been working on as a research assistant entitled 'how can we help parents recognise an unhealthy body weight in their children'.

The PhD is funded by an NIHR Doctoral Fellowship award.