Postgraduates who Teach Policy - Frequently Asked Questions

It is not compulsory for an Academic Unit to offer CPT or PGTA contracts, the decision should be made based on the teaching requirements within the Academic Unit, therefore, an Academic Unit may not offer employment through all the possible options.

Definitions of PGWT (Postgraduates Who Teach) Options:

Occasional Postgraduate Teacher (OPT)
Where ad-hoc or occasional teaching or teaching-related activities are required by an Academic Unit, these and are made available through the Student Employment on Campus route. The teaching duties are undertaken alongside the degree programme and should not impact on OPT’s academic progress or duration of candidature. Teaching duties are not normally expected to exceed an average of 6 hours per week in academic session (i.e., 160 hours per year based on 27 teaching and assessment weeks in the University calendar). In addition, PG Teachers holding student visas should not work more than 20 hours in any week to avoid breaching student visa conditions.

Contracted Postgraduate Teacher (CPT)
Where the Academic Unit requires and can plan for a Postgraduate Teacher to undertake a guaranteed number of teaching hours in a specified period, a part-time fixed term contract of employment can be offered for the teaching activity only, with remuneration by salary divided equally across a 12-month contract, usually from October to September inclusive. The teaching duties are undertaken alongside the degree programme and should not usually impact on a Postgraduate Teacher’s academic progress or duration of candidature. However, combined candidature which extends the duration of doctoral studies to 4 years should be considered if the teaching duties exceed an average of 6 hours per week or 160 hours in a year. A CPT who is registered as a full-time student would usually retain their student status for Council Tax purposes, but it is the student’s responsibility to consider this considering any other employment that they hold outside of the University that may have an impact on their eligibility for tax exemption.

Postgraduate Teaching Assistant (PGTA)
Where the Academic Unit requires a Postgraduate Teacher to undertake a significant amount of teaching, normally in excess of 0.2FTE on average (equivalent to ~345 hours per year), a fixed term contract of employment can be offered which includes an academic offer of a place on a degree programme alongside responsibility for provision of teaching throughout the duration of the research degree. The duration of candidature will be extended, usually as part-time candidature which extends the duration of doctoral studies to 6 years, although early submission may be agreed subject to academic progress.

Employment related questions

1. If a CPT has been given multiple contracts which span three years, would they convert to an open-ended contract?
No. These contracts are for students only and therefore they would not be eligible for the automatic conversion as stated in the Fixed Term Contracts policy. However, if they are successful in a role on completion of the studies, we would honour continuous service if there were no more than a 4-week break in service.

2. Will a CPT be eligible for Redundancy?
It would be highly unlikely for a CPT to be made redundant. If there was no longer an operational need for a CPT during their one-year contract, we would consider alternative roles/duties before deciding to end their fixed-term contract early. If we did end their fixed term contract early, we would issue and pay contractual notice.

3. Are CPTs (Contracted Postgraduate Teacher) and PGTAs (Post Graduate Teaching Assistant) ‘regular’ or ‘contingent’ academic colleagues?
CPT’s are contingent colleagues, like Associate Lecturers (Hourly paid) and PGTA’s are regular fixed-term colleagues.

4. Can a CPT be assigned additional hours?
A CPT can work additional hours, up to the maximum of 20 hours per week including CPT and SEOC employment, and this would be administered through the SEOC app.

5. How will annual leave be managed?
For Contracted Postgraduate Teachers (CPT), annual leave inclusive of bank holidays will be calculated and payable at a rate of 12.07% of the hourly rate. For Postgraduate Teaching Assistants (PGTAs) they will receive an annual leave allocation to book and take throughout the leave year, October – September.

6. How will sickness be managed?
For both CPTs and PGTAs, they will need to report their sickness absence in line with the school reporting procedures. Sickness absence will be managed in line with the Colleague Sickness Absence Policy and Procedure. CPT’s and PGTA’s will be eligible to occupational sick pay as outlined within the policy. This will normally be via the line manager, usually the Head of Subject, but may also be Teaching Group Lead or Module Leader dependent on the set-up in the school.

7. How will PDRs (Performance and Development Review) be managed?
CPTs will not have an annual PDR (Performance and Development Review) but should have regular performance ‘check in’s’ to make sure they feel supported and are teaching at an adequate standard.
PGTAs will also have regular performance ‘check-in’s’ but they will have access to Conversations and Priorities, with agreed objectives and reviews.
For both CPT’s and PGTA’s, these conversations will be with their line manager, usually the Head of Subject, but may also be Teaching Group Lead or Module Leader dependant on the set-up in the school.

8. Will incremental progression apply?
CPT’s and PGTA’s will be based on a spot point on the pay spine which is Grade E point 25. They will receive an annual pay award (cost of living increase) which is negotiated by UCEA (Universities and Colleges Employers Association) with the trade unions on our behalf.

9. Who will have line management responsibility?
It is likely that this will be the Head of Subject but will be decided locally by the Academic Unit, based on the activities being undertaken and the set-up in the school. The CPT/PGTA must be made aware of the name of their Line Manager prior to commencing their role, and this should not be the student’s supervisor.

10. If I am a Postgraduate Teacher and I go on parental leave, will I receive a parental leave payment?
Postgraduates who Teach Policy - Frequently Asked Questions

This will depend on the Postgraduate Teacher’s employment category as listed below:

OPT: As this contract is a casual worker agreement, payments such as family leave, sickness etc. are not paid.

CPT: Colleagues would be eligible for parental leave payments based on the eligibility criteria of each policy. Please refer to the suite of family leave policies for pay, duration etc. See PGTA: Same as CPT above. Furthermore, the PGTA may also be eligible for a DC (Doctoral College) parental leave bursary. Please see relevant policy for more information here.

11. Do Postgraduate Teachers need to declare participation in industrial action?
As a colleague, you would have to declare participation in action as there are pay implications, e.g., strike action, marking and assessment boycott. CPT’s and PGTA’s would need to complete the relevant online form to declare participation. OPT’s are not required to do this as the hours would not be claimed through the SEOC app.

Visa questions

12. Can student visa holders be offered a CPT or PGTA?
Yes, they can. However, they must not exceed the number of hours permitted in line with their visa permissions, e.g., 20 hours work per week, and they are responsible for ensuring compliance of this.

13. Will a PGTA be classed as an employee or student for the purpose of their visa?
As the main activity and affiliation with the University is to study, their student status is retained for visa purposes and working hours will be compliant with their visa permissions.

Council Tax

14. Will Postgraduate Teachers be subject to Council Tax exemption?
Households where all occupants are full-time students do not have to pay Council Tax. Please refer to the following website to check exemptions. https://www.gov.uk/council-tax/discounts-for-full-time-students

15. Will Postgraduate Teachers be subject to national insurance and tax?
PAYE tax and national insurance contributions will be based on the HMRC threshold. More information can be found here: https://www.gov.uk/guidance/rates-and-thresholds-for-employers-2022-to-2023

Academic Unit Considerations

17. Can Academic Units still manage teaching via SEOC (Student Employment on Campus)?
Yes, units can continue to use the Occasional Postgraduate Teacher (OPT) role and rate for an unplanned ad-hoc teaching need.

18. What happens if a CPT can no longer do hours they have committed to?
As a colleague they would resign from their contracted post, giving the relevant notice (4 weeks) by completing the leavers form.

19. Is there any flexibility on an October start date?
The policy states that CPTs are normally employed October to September as they need to be a registered student and registration for new student’s takes place in September. If they are a current student, they could start a CPT contract in September.
Postgraduates who Teach Policy - Frequently Asked Questions

In relation to a later start date, there may be circumstances impacting on the start date of the CPT and in those cases, the CPT can start at a different point in the academic year. Where the contract starts later than October, the overall length of the CPT will be reduced, as the end date for the CPT will not extend beyond the 30th of September.

20. Can an Academic Unit employ a PGTA part-way through the academic year?
The normal expectation is that a PGTA commences at the start of an academic year, however, there may be circumstances which prevent this, e.g., student awaiting their visa, etc. In those instances, the PGTA would start when the student is able to register and the duration of the PGTA would be as specified in the original offer.

21. Can they/I teach in multiple units?
Your contract of employment will be in one academic unit. However, you can pick up additional hours/work through the SEOC route if this does not exceed any visa restrictions or impact on your studies. You may wish to discuss this with your line manager or student supervisor.

Where a student works regular hours through their CPT/PGTA, these hours will be blocked out in the SEOC app.

Where a student works irregular hours, we would need to block a max number of hours out, so the student never goes over the 20-hour restriction.

22. I am a CPT or a PGTA; will I be contacted on a work email or a student email?
CPRs and PGTAs will have two University email addresses – one as a student and another as a colleague for their employment contract. The student email address will be for correspondence relating to the research degree from their Academic Supervisor and the Graduate School.

23. I have a PGTA role, and I need to take an interruption of studies, what would happen to my study and employment dates?
If you take an interruption, your academic study dates would be amended in line with the length of your interruption of studies. However, your employment contract will not be extended. Depending on the reason for your interruption, you would need to consider whether you are able to continue with the duties of your PGTA role and whether you would need to take leave of some sort.

24. I am interested in a CPT or PGTA role, how do I find out about these opportunities?
These roles will be advertised and interested parties will be invited to apply. If you are successful, you will be offered a contract of up to 12 months for a CPT role, or up to 6 years for a PGTA role, conditional upon your registration on a PhD programme.

25. Would PGTA pay fees at staff candidature rate?
The University’s Doctor of Philosophy Progress Regulations state that: “Employees of the University who have a substantive post with the University who wish to apply to undertake a part-time postgraduate programme may be eligible to pay the reduced staff” and “a substantive post is defined as being a contract of employment of at least 25% FTE over a full 12-month period and covering the annual period of registration”.

"Employees of the University who have a substantive post with the University who wish to apply to undertake a part-time postgraduate programme may be eligible to pay the reduced staff” and “a substantive post is defined as being a contract of employment of at least 25% FTE over a full 12-month period and covering the annual period of registration”.
Postgraduates who Teach Policy - Frequently Asked Questions

Where the PGTA contract is more than 25% FTE and is given for the whole duration of the PGR (Postgraduate Research) programme, the PGTA clearly has a “substantive post”, so the PGTA would be eligible for the reduced staff fee.

This would apply equally to Home or International students. Note that this does not apply to CPT contracts, who are on less than 0.25 FTE, since those do not represent a substantive post.

26. Is there a default fee band for a PGTA, or would that vary by Academic Unit?
This would vary by academic unit as the fee band is usually determined by the nature of the research to be undertaken.

27. A current PhD student has been offered one of the PGTA positions, with the idea that they will transfer the remaining time of their PhD into ‘PGTA time’ – is this possible?
We would allow current Doctoral students to apply for an advertised PGTA, and their application would be considered alongside applicants who are not currently registered at Newcastle. This way the application would be considered as part of an open competition.

If a current student was successful, the length of the PGTA being offered to them would have to be less than the 6 years we indicate in the policy, as their already completed candidature on the Doctoral programme would need to be taken into account. The length of the Doctoral programme would not be extended to accommodate a 6-year PGTA.

Generally, in terms of calculating remaining candidature, it is only the minimum candidature period that is extended by a change in candidature. The pending submission period remains at 12 months, whether you are full-time, part-time, or combined.

For example:
If a full-time PhD student who had completed 12 months of candidature was awarded a PGTA, they would transfer on to part-time candidature, which would give them a further five years to complete their PhD (4 years of minimum candidature and one year of writing-up).

If a full-time PhD student who had completed 24 months of candidature was awarded a PGTA, they would transfer on to part-time candidature, which would give them a further three years to complete their PhD (2 years of minimum candidature and one year of writing-up).
