– IMPORTANT INFORMATION

It can be great fun learning a language but also requires time, patience, and a lot of effort. Please first consider whether you have the time and commitment. Please ensure you can dedicate 2 hours per week for the classes and 2 to 3 hours for personal study. You may also be required to buy a textbook for use in class and for your homework.

After the end of the second week of teaching, you will not be able to receive a refund for the classes, so please make sure you can commit to the full semester. You will be given the opportunity to withdraw from the programme during the first two weeks of teaching only. This can be done by submitting a withdrawal form (UWLP Withdrawal Form \(2026/27\)).

You will have the option to take the assessments. These will take place in person in one of the final teaching weeks or done at home in your own time. If you wish to get a certificate confirming you have passed the class (upon request), you will need to take the assessments and pass these.

You will not be automatically enrolled onto semester 2. The initial application is for semester 1 only. If you would like to continue onto semester 2, you will be required to reapply and make another payment. If you have completed semester 1, you will be given the opportunity to apply again before the application is reopened to all staff.

Independent study

Regular homework and use of the LRC are expected.

Attendance

We would recommend attending every week to make the most out of the class. If you need to miss a week for any reason, please let your teacher know via email.

– WHAT IS MY LANGUAGE LEVEL?

UWLP modules loosely follow the structure of The Common European Framework of Reference for Language (CEFR). The CEFR has six levels: for each level, it describes what a learner is supposed to be able to do in reading, listening, speaking, and writing. These levels are:

Proficient User	C2 Mastery	Can understand with ease virtually everything heard or read. Can summarise information from different spoken and written sources, reconstructing arguments and accounts in a coherent presentation. Can express him/herself spontaneously, very fluently and precisely, differentiating finer shades of meaning even in more complex situations.
	C1 Effective Operational Efficiency	Can understand a wide range of demanding, longer texts, and recognise implicit meaning. Can express him/herself fluently and spontaneously without much obvious searching for expressions. Can use language flexibly and effectively for social, academic and professional purposes. Can produce clear, well-structured, detailed text on complex subjects, showing controlled use of organisational patterns, connectors and cohesive devices.
Independent User	B2 Vantage	Can understand the main ideas of complex text on both concrete and abstract topics, including technical discussions in his/her field of specialisation. Can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without strain for either party. Can produce clear, detailed text on a wide range of subjects and explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options.
	B1 Threshold	Can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc. Can deal with most situations likely to arise whilst travelling in an area where the language is spoken. Can produce simple connected text on topics, which are familiar, or of personal interest. Can describe experiences and events, dreams, hopes & ambitions and briefly give reasons and explanations for opinions and plans.
Basic User	A2 Waystage	Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. very basic personal and family information, shopping, local geography, employment). Can communicate in simple and routine tasks requiring a simple and direct exchange of information on familiar and routine matters. Can describe in simple terms aspects of his/her background, immediate environment and matters in areas of immediate need.
	A1 Breakthrough	Can understand and use familiar everyday expressions and very basic phrases aimed at the satisfaction of needs of a concrete type. Can introduce him/herself and others and can ask and answer questions about personal details such as where he/she lives, people he/she knows and things he/she has. Can interact in a simple way provided the other person talks slowly and clearly and is prepared to help.

Once you have identified your level on the CEFR, please refer to the grid below to see the equivalent level on the University-Wide Language Programme:

– WHAT DO THE ASSESSMENTS ENTAIL?

Assessments consist of two tasks, each combining two skills: speaking/listening and writing/reading. Each assessment is worth 50% of the total module mark.

Type of assessment	Weighting	When set
Speaking/listening For lower levels, this assessment is usually a role-play, or short conversation based on situations that you have practiced in the module, or a given topic (details on Canvas). It lasts a few minutes and is usually done in class, with some preparation time. For lower intermediate and above, you may need to give a short presentation followed by some questions.	50%	Determined by the teacher (During or at the end of the semester)
Writing/reading This assessment usually involves writing a letter, email, or (at higher levels) a summary or essay that includes specific information from a document in the target language. You may need to demonstrate understanding of the grammar points covered in the module. Tasks might differ slightly for East Asian languages; your teacher will provide more details. This assessment is usually done at home, in your own time.	50%	Determined by the teacher (During or at the end of the semester)

It is optional for members of staff to engage with assessments. You are welcome to complete the module without attempting the assessments at the end. Please be aware that to pass the module and receive a certificate, you must complete both assessments and receive a 'Pass'. There is no consequence if you attempt the assessment and do not pass.
