- 2 The knowledge, understanding, skills and attributes required for analysing the financial and economic impacts of private and public sector organisations.
- 3 The ability to apply the knowledge, skills and understanding gained on the programme to a specific empirical focus within an individual project or dissertation.

To contribute to the University's objectives by increasing the number of graduate students and enhancing their key skills and employability, diversifying the teaching portfolio and developing alternative modes of delivery, and responding to the CPD agenda.

To provide a qualification which fully meets the learning outcomes at Level 4 in the national qualifications framework.

To provide a programme that conforms to University policies and QAA Codes of Practice.

11 Learning Outcomes

The programme provides students with opportunities to acquire the knowledge of the key principles and theories in their subject area and to demonstrate disciplinary competency. It combines theory with the application of skills required to generate solutions within their discipline.

Knowledge and Understanding

The programme provides opportunities for the students to develop and demonstrate:

- A1 An advanced understanding of the role of finance in a modern economy and how countries interact in the global markets for goods, services, and capital.
- A2 An advanced understanding of the international implications of monetary policy and financial decisions.
- A3 An advanced understanding of current research and scholarship on economic and finance theory.

A4 An advanced understanding of empirical modelling techniques.

A5 The knowledge of economic and financial environments and institutions and how environmental components differ across countries and the markets in which they operate.

A6 The ability to identify ethical issues and make recommendations for appropriate courses of action.

Teaching and Learning Methods

The primary means of imparting knowledge and understanding is a combination of lectures (A1-6), a variety of different seminar modes (A1-6), supervision in the development of project proposals (A1-6), and tutorial supervision of a dissertation (A1-6). Each seminar mode is interactive and student-focused, including discussion of taught and read material (A1-6), individual and group projects (A1, A2, A4-6), and practical projects (A1, A2, A4-6).

As this will be essentially a conversion programme there will be a heavy emphasis on the taught components, however throughout the taught components of the course, students are encouraged and expected to engage in independent reading and are supported in this by the provision of extensive and prioritised reading lists.

Students are enabled to learn through their active participation in the different modes of course seminar (A1-6), group project work (A1, A2, A4-6), and through the supervision given to individual project work (A1, A2, A4-6).

Assessment Strategy

Knowledge and understanding are assessed by a range of approaches, chosen to accurately assess student capabilities. These comprise essays (A1, A2, A4-6), individual and group project reports (A1, A2, A4-6), a literature review and research proposal (A1, A2, A4-6), individual presentations (A1, A2), and formal seen and unseen exams (A1--6). Some, or all, of A1-6 (depending upon the topic), but especially A3, are also assessed by means of a dissertation.

Intellectual Skills

On completing the programme students should be able to:

- B1 To critically engage with contemporary debates on the significance of finance and international trade .
- B2 To critically engage with contemporary debates on the role of banking supervision in a national and international environment.
- B3 To critically evaluate current research and scholarship on finance and international trade theory.
- B4 To deal with complex issues both systematically and analytically, and to use the analysis to make sound judgements.

Teaching and Learning Methods
Cognitive skills are developed through seminar discussion groups (B1-4), short individual projects (B1, B2, B4), and group projects (B1-4). All the cognitive skills (B1-4) are exercised significantly at an advanced level during the preparation and execution of the dissertation, supported by the module Research Methods in International Economics and Finance, and tutorial supervision for individual students.
Assessment Strategy
Cognitive skills are assessed using essays (B1, B2, B4), exams (B1-4), a literature review and research project proposal for Research Methods in International Economics and Finance (B1-3), individual short project reports (B1-4), short group reports (B1-4), and individual audio-visual presentations with accompanying notes (B3, B4). Some, or all, of B1-4 (depending upon the topic) are also examined by means of an extended individual project or dissertation.
Practical Skills
The programme provides opportunities for the students to develop and demonstrate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> C1 The ability to deploy the main analytical techniques in the area of finance and international economics and an advanced capability with some of these techniques. C2 The ability to critically assess the quality of the analytical data generated by these techniques, and to synthesise and present relevant data, conclusions and recommendations to both specialist and non-specialist audiences C3 The ability to exercise responsibility and leadership in group projects. C4 The ability to apply, with originality and creativity, the knowledge, skills and understanding gained on the programme to complex issues within the finance and related industries.
Teaching and Learning Methods
Subject specific and practical skills are taught through lectures and seminars (C1-4), supervision of the development of individual and group projects (C4). Apart from the lectures, all of these teaching methods are also designed to further enable student learning and to complement their independent study and group-work. Such learning is reinforced and further developed as students apply their new skills in their dissertation (C1-4) under the guidance of their supervisor.
Assessment Strategy
Subject specific and practical skills are assessed by means of short individual project reports (C1, C2), short group project reports (C1-4), individual audio-visual presentations with accompanying notes (C2), essays (C1, C2), exams (C1, C2), and the literature review and project proposal for Research Methods in International Economics and Finance (C2, C4). Some, or all, of C1-4 (depending upon the topic) are also examined by means of a dissertation. A feature of the programme is the use of mid-term assessments to permit the students to receive early feedback on their progress.

Transferable/Key Skills
On completing the programme students should be able to: The programme provides opportunities for the students to develop and demonstrate the following key skills:- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> D1 The ability to communicate clearly and concisely to both specialist and non-specialist audiences using written, verbal and audio-visual channels. D2 The ability to appropriately use library and information sources, and IT resources and applications. D3 The ability to organise and prioritise work activities and manage time effectively. D4 The ability to work independently with professional responsibility, creative initiative and originality work within a team contributing appropriately and effectively towards the team based activity. D5 The ability to deal appropriately with complex and unpredictable problems. D6 The ability to manage their own continued professional development and self-directed learning.
Teaching and Learning Methods
Some key skills are formally taught in the specific Research Methods in International Economics and Finance (D1-3, D6). They are also taught informally as an additional outcome of those teaching methods focused on group-work (D3-5), and the preparation of short Briefings (D1, D2). To promote learning, students are encouraged to acquire, develop and utilise key skills in seminars involving individual and group projects – with both audio-visual presentations and written reports (D1, D3, D4) – and individual and group projects requiring information search, analysis and interpretation (D2, D3). Planning, organisation and prioritisation and effective time management (D3) are promoted by means of a strictly enforced coursework submission timetable. Opportunities for the students to develop key skills exist in each of the components of the dissertation and associated supervision: identification of issue and construction of research plan (D5), literature review and method development (D2, D4-6), primary and secondary research (D1-6) and analysis and final write-up (D1-6).
Assessment Strategy
Key skills are not independently assessed. However, all the key skills (D1-6) are indirectly assessed by the main modes of coursework utilised to assess the other learning outcomes (A-C inclusive) (essays, exams, short briefings, individual and group project reports, individual presentations, the literature review and project proposal). Some, or all, of D1-6 (depending upon the topic) are also assessed by means of a dissertation.

Key features of the programme (including what makes the programme distinctive)

This is a one-year full-time modular MSc programme. It consists of two stages: a taught component and a research dissertation. The programme has been designed to meet the demand for a specialist postgraduate course in finance and international economics. A distinctive feature of the programme is that students will be given an international perspective in the role of finance and trade.

The programme aims to produce graduates who understand the fundamentals of finance theory and its interrelationships with international monetary policy and international trade practice. The course is primarily aimed at graduates, or those at graduate level, with a predominantly non-financial background but are interested in a management career with a strong emphasis on finance and international economics. The MSc in International Economics and Finance is designed for students to build knowledge and expertise aiming to cover positions of responsibility in international banks, financial institutions, multinational enterprises, consulting firms, central banks or government agencies. It also provides excellent preliminary training for those who wish to pursue further research in view of a career in research institutions or central banks.

14 Support for Student Learning

The Student Services portal provides links to key services and other information and is available at: <http://www.ncl.ac.uk/students/>

Induction

During the first week of the first semester students attend an induction programme. New students will be given a general introduction to University life and the University's principle support services and general information about the School and their programme, as described in the Degree Programme Handbook. New and continuing students will be given detailed programme information and the timetable of lectures/practicals/labs/ tutorials/etc. The International Office offers an additional induction programme for overseas students.

Study skills support

Students will learn a range of Personal Transferable Skills, including Study Skills, as outlined in the Programme Specification. Some of this material, e.g. time management is covered in the appropriate Induction Programme. Students are explicitly tutored on their approach to both group and individual projects.

Numeracy support is available through Maths Aid and help with academic writing is available from the Writing Development Centre (further information is available from the Robinson Library).

Academic and Pastoral support

Each undergraduate and taught postgraduate student will be assigned a personal tutor.* A personal tutor is one part of a wider network of advice and guidance available to students to support their personal and general academic development. The module leader acts as the first point of contact for subject-specific academic advice. Thereafter the Degree Programme Director or Head of School may be consulted. Issues relating to the programme may be raised at the Student-Staff Committee, and/or at the Board of Studies. Within the academic unit, students may also receive additional academic and pastoral advice from a range of other student-facing staff including degree programme directors, dissertation/project supervisors, and administrative support staff.

*Arrangements may vary for students taking special types of provision.

The University also offers a wide range of institutional services and support upon which students can call, such as the Writing Development Centre, Careers Service and Student Wellbeing Service. This includes one-to-one counselling and guidance or group sessions / workshops on a range of topics, such as emotional issues e.g. stress and anxiety, student finance and budgeting, disability matters etc. There is specialist support available for students with dyslexia and mental health issues. Furthermore, the Student Union operates a Student Advice Centre, which can provide advocacy and support to students on a range of topics including housing, debt, legal issues etc.

Support for students with disabilities

The University's Disability Support team provides help and advice for disabled students at the University - and those thinking of coming to Newcastle. It provides individuals with: advice about the University's facilities, services and the accessibility of campus; details about the technical support available; guidance in study skills and advice on financial support arrangements; a resources room with equipment and software to assist students in their studies.

Learning resources

The University's main learning resources are provided by the Robinson and Walton Libraries (for books, journals, online resources), and Information Systems and Services, which supports campus-wide computing facilities.

All new students whose first language is not English are required to take an English Language Proficiency Test. This is administered by INTO Newcastle University Centre on behalf of Newcastle University. Where appropriate, in-session language training can be provided. The INTO Newcastle University Centre houses a range of resources which may be particularly appropriate for those interested in an Erasmus exchange.

15 Methods for evaluating and improving the quality and standards of teaching and learning

Module reviews

All modules are subject to review by questionnaires which are considered by the Board of Studies. Changes to, or the introduction of new, modules are considered at the Board of Studies and/or the School Teaching and Learning Committee. Student opinion is sought at the Staff-Student Committee and/or the Board of Studies. New modules and major changes to existing modules are subject to approval by the Faculty Learning, Teaching and Student Experience Committee.

Programme reviews

The Board of Studies conducts an Annual Monitoring and Review of the degree programme and reports to Faculty Learning, Teaching and Student Experience Committee. The FLTSEC takes an overview of all programmes within the Faculty and reports any Faculty or institutional issues to the Faculty Learning, Teaching and Student Experience Committee.

External Examiner reports

External Examiner reports are considered by the Board of Studies. The Board responds to these reports through Faculty Learning, Teaching and Student Experience Committee. External Examiner reports are shared with institutional student representatives, through the Staff-Student Committee.

Student evaluations

All modules, and the degree programme, are subject to review by student questionnaires. Informal student evaluation is also obtained at the Staff-Student Committee, and the Board of Studies. The results from student surveys are considered as part of the Annual Monitoring and Review of the programme and any arising actions are captured at programme and School / institutional level and reported to the appropriate body.

Mechanisms for gaining student feedback

Feedback is channelled via the Staff-Student Committee and the Board of Studies.

Faculty and University Review Mechanisms

Every six years degree programmes in each subject area undergo periodic review. This involves both the detailed consideration of a range of documentation, and a review visit by a review team (normally one day in duration) which includes an external subject specialist and a student representative. Following the review a report is produced, which forms the basis for a decision by University Learning, Teaching and Student Experience Committee on whether the programmes reviewed should be re-approved for a further six year period.

Accreditation reports

None.

Additional mechanisms

None.
